Epidemics of so-called "queue-cutling" have on various occasions caused lanies in China. The natives have as tule attributed the outrage either to Stellety, A Japanese doctor, however, actording to the Chinese native pabers has discovered that the loss of may often result from the of a microbe which is found on and rats. Perhaps the "bald-and disease" which ravaged Formewas of the same origin.

Shenandoah's Former Masters. Superstitious seafaring men who believe in hoodoo ships are talking about the Shenandoah, whose former master, Wilder Murphy, met his death in the loss of the ship John McDonald off the Coast a few months ago. He was chief officer of the McDonald at the time, under Captain Seymour Watts. Hoodeo or not, the Shenandoah has hitherto had unfortunate masters. Captain Eben Murphy was in command of the Shenandoah when, upon returning to Portland a few years ago he was called upon to stand trial for alleged cruelty to a half-witted sallor who had been with him on the American ship George Stetson. Captain Murphy was found innocent of the charge, but the trouble brought on brain fever, T. K. K. Nippon Maru, Greene, from from which he died. The mate, Harvey, was also acquitted of the charge of cruelty, and went as chief officer on the Shenandoah under young Wilder Murphy, who was just 21 years old when he took command of the big ship. The ves-I.-I. stmr. James Makee, Tullett, for sel carried a cargo of lumber from Port Blakeley to Sydney, making a quick passage, but while in the Australian port the young captain cut such a pace that he was relieved of command and Harvey was given charge of the ship. On the way to San Francisco, while temporarily insane, Harvey jumped overboard and was drowned. When the Shenandoah arrived, Captain James T. K. K. Nippon Maru, Greene, for Jurphy, father of the young captain, amed command of the ship, and is on her, having good luck at last unts. Three captains of the Shenh have, however, passed away, two in meeting tragic deaths.
